

Mediation(skills) training Curaçao

In June 2017 The Lime Tree will be giving a mediation skills training programme in Curaçao. In six intensive days you will be trained to be a mediator. This accredited mediation training programme is required to be undertaken prior to you taking the 2 exams necessary to be registered with the Netherlands Mediators Federation (MfN). The language of the training and exams is Dutch.

Mediation

In our complex present day society conflicts are prevalent in every walk of life: conflicts in the workplace, in the world of business, ownership disputes, problems between neighbours and divorce to name but a few.
A mediator or someone with mediation skills, can play a role in parties finding a solution or making the conflict more manageable. A conflict can even be prevented when mediation skills are applied at an early stage. The route via the courts with a winner and a loser can be avoided through the use of mediation. Not only does this save time and energy, but the costs are in general lower. Frequently the agreements parties reach in Mediation will withstand the test of time.

Everyone who works with people (whose interests are not always compatible with each other) will profit from learning mediation skills. In any meeting or situation where friction or tension is present the ability to use mediation skills can reduce these and help create a more productive setting. More information about this training is to be found on www.thelimetree.nl/antillen.

Training dates

14, 15, 16, 19, 20 and 21 June 2017 in Curaçao (location follows).
